

The whole world has been profoundly shocked by the attempted assassination of the man who has been called the greatest living American.

Dispatches from the capitals of the world indicate that the news is regarded there as of the highest moment.

In Chicago last night, John M. Harlan and J. Adam Bede were denouncing Col. Roosevelt as a liar and a thief at a meeting at the Auditorium.

In the middle of the denunciation, the news of the shooting was brought to George Gordon, managing editor of the Daily Press. Gordon jumped to his feet.

"Mr. Roosevelt has just been shot by an anarchist," he shouted. "He is reported to be dying. There is no further need for translating him from this platform."

The people could hardly believe the news at first.

Col. Roosevelt himself is the most cheerful man in the country. While telegrams of sympathy and denunciation of the would-be assassin are pouring in today, the Colonel was sitting up in bed reading and joking with those who came in to see him with grave faces.

All Col. Roosevelt's speaking dates in his campaign for the presidency have been cancelled.
